'LIST OF THE KILLED."

Mothers, who sit 'n dumo terror and dread,

Holding that terrible list,
Fearing to look lest you see 'mid the dead
The name of the boy you have kissed—

Kissed e'en as those who in anguish and pain,

Kiss precious faces or clay, Elenus you would lind you shudderingly lain That door one in grave robes away—

Striving to parry the blow; know how that name will torture the sight, Can fathom the depth of your wos.

By the pang that rent my desolate heart.

know you'll hush that passionate cry,

Thinking of him se he lies, With beautiful tase upturned to the sky, Death vailing the glorious eyes

Fighting he fell!" Does a feeling of pride

Lighten your grief as you think
How brave was the coy that went from your
How he would not falter or shrink !

I know that I start at each step on the stair, With wistful glance tern toward the door, Thinking, perchance, that my my darling

But still there's a thought that softens my woe-Above there's a glorious list; And one day I'll hear with rapismous glow The name of the boy I have kissed.

Burton, April 29th, 1862. A Curious Charge of an Irish Judge.

O'Neill Daust, in his "Memoirs of O'Counell," tells the following strange story:-"As we passed through Nass, O'Connell observed that the head of O'Connor, a rebel schoolmaster, who was banged in 1796, had ceased for some years to ornament the goal. He made (said O'Connell) a bold speech in the Committee—Warren Bishop and Ludy, dock. He complained of taxes and oppressions of various descriptions, and then said, Before the flesh has decayed from my bury; Mrs. S. C. Dayton, Burton; Miss bones—nay, before my body is laid in the H. M. Ensign, Auburn; Mrs. Martha earth, the avenger of Tyranny will come. The French are on the sea while I utter d best 1,00 Johnson, Burton.

Committee—Executive Committee of the CLASS X L.—FANCY NEEDLE WORK these words, they will soon effect short and easy voyage, and strike tersor and dismay into the cruel Irish people." When the prisoner concluded, Judge Finucane com-1 00 menced his charge, in the course of which he thus attacked the politics, predictions he thus attacked the politics, predictions and arguments of the unhappy prisoner:

O'Connor, you're a great blockhead for your pains. Don't you know, you fool, that Lord Howe knocked their ships to smithsreens last year? And, therefore, O'Connor, you shall return to the place from whence you came, and you shall be delivered into the bands of the common executioner, and you shall be banged by the——Oh! I must not forget there was another point of nonsense in your speech. You talked about the tax on leather, and said it would make us all go berefeet. Now Common make us all go barefoot. Now, O'Connor, 50 I've the pleasure to inform you that I have Discretionary premiums to be awarded a large estate in Clare, and there is not a tenant upon it that basn't got as good boots and shoes as myself. Aud, therefore, O'Conner, you shall return to the place from whence you came, and you shall be banged by the neck till you are dead, and your body shall be divided into quarters, and may the Lord have mercy on your soul!"
The only reply O'Connor made was, "If you are kind to your tenants, my lord, may God bless you!"
